

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Baltimore Correspondence. BALTIMORE, Jan. 25, 1881. French Spoliation Bill—McDonogh Bequest—Italian Opera, &c.

The passage of the French Spoliation bill by the Senate has caused great rejoicing among the numerous and meritorious claimants in this city. It has, however, frequently been legislated on thus far before, and may, probably, not pass the ordeal of the House of Representatives at this session.

The friends and relatives of the Baltimoreans on board the steamer Atlantic, are now in great tribulation on account of the failure of the Arctic to bring some tidings of the missing vessel. Many are now of the opinion that her fate is the same as the President, having foundered at sea or been destroyed by an iceberg.

The work of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute is progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

The friends of the new hall of the Mechanics' Institute are progressing rapidly, all the contracts having been closed, and the foundation being laid. This will be, probably, the longest hall in the United States, being about 300 feet long by 60 in width.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Philadelphia Correspondence. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25, 1881. The Liverpool Steamship Line—The Fugitive Slave—The Italian Opera—Brazil Act.

The prospect is that Stephen Bennett, the fugitive slave, who was yesterday remanded into the custody of his master, will be redeemed from bondage by his friends at Columbia, Pa., where a subscription has been made for the purpose.

When he first saw Mr. Gallup, he exclaimed: "Well, mister, how do you do, being ten inches taller than you were when I was in the hands of the Marshal until the arrangements for his purchase are effected."

At 8 o'clock last evening, a large barn near West Chester, Delaware, belonging to Richard W. Hart, was set on fire by an incendiary, and two houses and twenty cattle perished in the flames.

It is reported that Mr. Wainley has offered to pay $100,000 damages to Mr. Lumley, the director of the Italian Opera, London, who was nearly killed by a fall from a scaffold in the city of London.

Yesterday Wm. C. Kessler, a sheep dealer, was committed to prison, on a charge of rape, committed with the aid of another man, still at large, upon the person of Mary Carr, a married woman, living near Coleridge, Pa.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Baltimore Correspondence. BALTIMORE, Jan. 25, 1881. The Liverpool Steamship Line—The Fugitive Slave—The Italian Opera—Brazil Act.

The prospect is that Stephen Bennett, the fugitive slave, who was yesterday remanded into the custody of his master, will be redeemed from bondage by his friends at Columbia, Pa., where a subscription has been made for the purpose.

When he first saw Mr. Gallup, he exclaimed: "Well, mister, how do you do, being ten inches taller than you were when I was in the hands of the Marshal until the arrangements for his purchase are effected."

At 8 o'clock last evening, a large barn near West Chester, Delaware, belonging to Richard W. Hart, was set on fire by an incendiary, and two houses and twenty cattle perished in the flames.

It is reported that Mr. Wainley has offered to pay $100,000 damages to Mr. Lumley, the director of the Italian Opera, London, who was nearly killed by a fall from a scaffold in the city of London.

Yesterday Wm. C. Kessler, a sheep dealer, was committed to prison, on a charge of rape, committed with the aid of another man, still at large, upon the person of Mary Carr, a married woman, living near Coleridge, Pa.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Philadelphia Correspondence. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25, 1881. The Liverpool Steamship Line—The Fugitive Slave—The Italian Opera—Brazil Act.

The prospect is that Stephen Bennett, the fugitive slave, who was yesterday remanded into the custody of his master, will be redeemed from bondage by his friends at Columbia, Pa., where a subscription has been made for the purpose.

When he first saw Mr. Gallup, he exclaimed: "Well, mister, how do you do, being ten inches taller than you were when I was in the hands of the Marshal until the arrangements for his purchase are effected."

At 8 o'clock last evening, a large barn near West Chester, Delaware, belonging to Richard W. Hart, was set on fire by an incendiary, and two houses and twenty cattle perished in the flames.

It is reported that Mr. Wainley has offered to pay $100,000 damages to Mr. Lumley, the director of the Italian Opera, London, who was nearly killed by a fall from a scaffold in the city of London.

Yesterday Wm. C. Kessler, a sheep dealer, was committed to prison, on a charge of rape, committed with the aid of another man, still at large, upon the person of Mary Carr, a married woman, living near Coleridge, Pa.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Baltimore Correspondence. BALTIMORE, Jan. 25, 1881. The Liverpool Steamship Line—The Fugitive Slave—The Italian Opera—Brazil Act.

The prospect is that Stephen Bennett, the fugitive slave, who was yesterday remanded into the custody of his master, will be redeemed from bondage by his friends at Columbia, Pa., where a subscription has been made for the purpose.

When he first saw Mr. Gallup, he exclaimed: "Well, mister, how do you do, being ten inches taller than you were when I was in the hands of the Marshal until the arrangements for his purchase are effected."

At 8 o'clock last evening, a large barn near West Chester, Delaware, belonging to Richard W. Hart, was set on fire by an incendiary, and two houses and twenty cattle perished in the flames.

It is reported that Mr. Wainley has offered to pay $100,000 damages to Mr. Lumley, the director of the Italian Opera, London, who was nearly killed by a fall from a scaffold in the city of London.

Yesterday Wm. C. Kessler, a sheep dealer, was committed to prison, on a charge of rape, committed with the aid of another man, still at large, upon the person of Mary Carr, a married woman, living near Coleridge, Pa.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

Our Philadelphia Correspondence. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25, 1881. The Liverpool Steamship Line—The Fugitive Slave—The Italian Opera—Brazil Act.

The prospect is that Stephen Bennett, the fugitive slave, who was yesterday remanded into the custody of his master, will be redeemed from bondage by his friends at Columbia, Pa., where a subscription has been made for the purpose.

When he first saw Mr. Gallup, he exclaimed: "Well, mister, how do you do, being ten inches taller than you were when I was in the hands of the Marshal until the arrangements for his purchase are effected."

At 8 o'clock last evening, a large barn near West Chester, Delaware, belonging to Richard W. Hart, was set on fire by an incendiary, and two houses and twenty cattle perished in the flames.

It is reported that Mr. Wainley has offered to pay $100,000 damages to Mr. Lumley, the director of the Italian Opera, London, who was nearly killed by a fall from a scaffold in the city of London.

Yesterday Wm. C. Kessler, a sheep dealer, was committed to prison, on a charge of rape, committed with the aid of another man, still at large, upon the person of Mary Carr, a married woman, living near Coleridge, Pa.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.

The high rates charged by our carrying companies will be a great hindrance to the export of wool for the spring business; but until the rates of toll and transportation are promulgated, nothing definite can be said.